ABOUT THE SOUNDWATERS SUPER SPLASH

On Sunday, February 11, hundreds of people of all ages will run and jump into a chilly Long Island Sound. They are helping build the conversation about climate change. Like oceans around the world, the waters of Long Island Sound are warming and it's changing our local environment. What does this all mean? We're not sure yet, but we are sure who will have to deal with the effects: the next generation.

The Super Splash is raising money so we can teach climate science to the next generation, giving them the tools to understand and manage climate change and its effects. So, is the Super Splash fun? Yes! Is it serious? Yes! Serious Fun.
